

Guidelines for NORRAG Special Issue articles

Prospective authors should feel free to contact the editors with proposals and a date for submission

- NORRAG will not accept articles whose main thrust is to promote an institution or programme in which the author has a vested interest. Any possible conflict of interest should be indicated.
- The focus of all articles should remain on education, rather than broader development issues.
- Text should range between 1000 and 2000 words excluding bibliography and be submitted in English, French or Spanish.
- It is important to keep in mind that while NORRAG Special Issue articles must be empirically and theoretically grounded, it is not an academic publication. Therefore, references should focus on sources that are essential for validating factual claims or to provide further reading on contemporary issues and debates.
- Please limit the use of acronyms to those that are widespread and write out the full name in the first in-text reference to an acronym, followed by the acronym itself written in capital letters and enclosed by parentheses.
- Articles may be submitted to further editing. Authors will be consulted about suggested changes.
- A short abstract of no more than 150 words should be appended. If submitted in French or Spanish, articles should be accompanied by an English version of the abstract.
- Five key words or expressions should be provided.
- Authors should identify themselves by their current professional titles.
- Text should be in Times New Roman font 12 and formatted as single spaced and aligned to the left.
- Documents can be submitted in .doc, .docx or .odt format.
